

Decks Wine Bar, Teignmouth Birthday hares: Larks Vomit and Parapruck

It was a grey evening when we assembled, gone was summer and it had rained solidly all day, resigned to getting wet and with head torches at the ready we set off.

Splashing through puddles, we agreed that we were grateful that it had stopped raining.

On on was called towards the point, and Strongbow, Wide Receiver and the other FRB's soon disappeared from sight, knowing that there were not many options other than swimming across to Shaldon. We slowed down and took a tactical shortcut across the car park and round to the Den, where we could see the stage being set up for the forthcoming Muse Concert.

Past the Victorian Pier, along the seafront, and soon came to a check, on on was called towards the Lido and Dawlish, along the sea wall. I stopped as I had been caught out on previous occasions by this route, and instead chose to follow Bootboy who was legging it up the hill, sure enough, a back check was called and Spocky and the rest of the pack soon caught us up. I was keeping Bootboy firmly in my sights as he is local and knows the area. However Bootboy has been known to take himself off home without any warning, so not always a good idea.

We came to a long short split, the long went down and down towards the station. At this point we lost the trail and X Bitz, ALP, Puss in Bootless and I decided enough was enough as it had started raining again, and we made our way through the town back to the car park. Whoopsie, meanwhile had got separated, and was being heckled in an underpass by a group of chav's. As a teacher I am quite sure she was able to give as good as she got!

Back to Decks and down downs were given to;-

- Hares Larks and Parapruck for an excellent if damp trail.
- Woof Woof as she is off to New Zealand
- The Birthday people, Larks, Wide Receiver, myself and Spocky
- Coffin got one for putting in a guest appearance

Larks and ParaP had laid on a fantastic spread for us and we enjoyed the rest of the evening.

on on...
